Capital and Labor Must Be Kept Busy

In the right channels to keep the nation prosperous. National prosperity is the collective result of local prosperity and "confidence" is the mysterious thing back of both. Confidence is necessary in all walks of life to bring success, for without it there can be no future. Our own town needs the confidence of her people. A town is known by its works just as a man is known by his deeds. There's no better way to show your confidence in the town than to be known as a home owner and no quicker way to gain your share of the independence for which our Revolutionary fathers fought than to own a home. Better start today—come in and talk it over with us—we can give you a good idea of the total cost as well as the kind of timber you'll need.

CHAUFFEUR—INDISPENSABLE WORD

MAYOR FRED T. SANDERSON is still having trouble with the word chauffeur, and when the automobile ordinance comes up, the mayor reading ordinances while City Recorder T. F. Nicholas posts up his minutes, the chief city magistrate's dilemma is no slight one.

He had to call for help last week on the word, and last night it was up to City Attorney Horace Manning to give the needed "hunch" to his honor. As soon as the new municipal legal directory was appealed to he promptly told the mayor, in phonetic accents, that the pronunciation was "show-fewer."

If the mayor reads the ordinance the next time somebody will have to "show-more" about the word, no doubt.

The word is naturally a handicap to a person of decidedly American predilection.

However, it is expected that the ordinance will eventually go through, even though burdened with the foreign puzzler.

Such a word is indispensable to any ordinance, treatise, essay or thesis on the auto, as well as to the ownership of such a means of conveyance, likewise to the proper management of a garage.

MAKING THE SOIL YIELD MORE

ONE way to reduce the cost of living is to make the ground produce larger crops. Too many farmers are more intent on adding to the size of their farms than in getting bigger returns from the land they already own.

It is well known that in some European countries where conditions of soil and climate are scarcely as good as they are in this country the yield per acre of crops is much greater than with us. Germany produces twice as many bushels of wheat to the acre, and England does even better.

We see similar contrasts even in our own land, and the strange thing about it is that states possessing the richest soil sometimes show the poorest relative returns in yield. Illinois, for instance, ranks high in soil fertility, while the soil of Connecticut and Maine is naturally poorer, yet Connecticut and Maine get 25 percent more corn off an acre than Illinois does, and in wheat Maine gets twice as much. A similar condition prevails as to potatoes, oats and some other crops, and this difference in yield is, of course, due to the difference between intensive and scientific farming and that which to a large extent is superficial.

It stands to reason that if a man is a benefactor to his race who makes two blades of grass grow where but grew before, so also is the man who on a given amount of ground doubles the yield of alfalfa, wheat and other crops—and the thing can be done.

That this would benefit the consumer goes without saying, but it would also benefit the farmer. True, there would be a slight extra cost for labor and perhaps a somewhat smaller price for his products, but the much larger crop would more than balance this. Then, too, it must be remembered that it requires no more buildings, tools and fencing for a hundred acre farm producing thirty bushels of wheat to the acre than for the same size farm that yields but half the amount. And this fact is equally true as to other crops.

SOTTO VOCE

Considering the influence James Driscoll has with the city council, why not delegate him to impress on the members the need of keeping the newly paved Main street clean of snow, at least up as far as the White Pelican hotel?

In Ireland a bull is a certain kind of error of language, in the United States, it is the material from which we occasionally—not always—get a nice steak, and in a province in Germany a bull which has just been proposed is to tax bachelor men and women. Take your choice. Being American, ours is the steak, although we might be inclined to choose that despite a "pro patria" basis.

Life is just one blamed thing after another, to paraphrase the words of a poet, whose original statement embraced a rather warm adjective applying to things which might be objectionable to the linotype, as imperiling his machine. The fact is brought home to us, owing to last week it having snowed copiously, and now it shows a rainy tendency.

A good deal of what in the average boy is called badness is nothing but a natural exuberance of spirits. Whether that exuberance will ultimately become actual badness or make for the benefit of the boy in future years depends mainly upon the way the boy is handled. If he is rigidly kept down he will become either a milkop or a tough, but if wisely guided he will in all probability develop into a man of spirit and action with success written large before him.

KLAMATH REPUBLICAN

THE HOME PAPER OF KLAMATH AND LAKE COUNTIES

IT has been estimated that half a million dollars was spent by the farmers of this section last year with mail order houses. A little money spent in judicious advertising would secure this trade to the Klamath Falls business man. Can any merchant afford to neglect this opportunity?

The KLAMATH REPUBLICAN covers every section of Klamath and Lake
 Counties

It already has the circulation. The farmers want to know what inducements you have to offer them to trade with you. If you do not tell them you alone are to blame for their patronage of mail order houses.
